Arizona Meteorological Weather Forecast

Weak monsoonal flow entered central and southeastern Arizona last week, producing widely scattered thunderstorms and cooler temperatures. Hot and dry conditions remain in place in western Arizona. This week’s forecast calls for more of the same with low grade monsoon conditions in central and southeastern Arizona and hot and dry conditions in the west. Humidity levels in central and eastern areas are expected to peak Tuesday, then decrease until the weekend when another surge of moisture is expected. Western Arizona is forecast to remain hot and dry through the weekend. Temperatures in all areas will average a few degrees above normal.
