The Cornucopia Garden

Our first garden, by Cricket Aldridge, has taken nine years of transformation to reach its current condition. She calls her garden “The Cornucopia Garden” as she uses the garden to help teach her children. The house was built in 1992, and over the past nine years it has been transformed into a garden that contains many edibles, wicking beds, rain barrels, recycled retaining walls, a trellis grapevine and beautiful stone fruit trees. When you visit this garden you will find a surprise in every corner.
